GIN

Gin flavour profile comes mainly from juniper berries, but other varied botanicals are also used in the production process. Its roots are Dutch (Jenever, late 16th century), but in England, gin found its home in the 17th century. There are different categories of gin, depending on production methods, geographical origins and sugar content.

Gin must be bottled at least at 37.5%. It is the soul of many classic cocktails, from the Martinez to the Collins and many more.

TEQUILA & MEZCAL

Made in Mexico, mainly in the region of Jalisco, Tequila is Mexico's most precious national treasure. It is referred to as Blanco if not aged, Reposado if rested for less than one year, Añejo if less than 3 years and Extra Añejo for anything beyond.

While Margarita's made its glory, modern, darker and more refined tequilas lend themselves to more sophisticated palates.
